People's interest in the subject of longevity?

- People expressed little interest in the subject over the last twenty years, according to Google Trends.
- The majority interest was expressed in Western and South Asian countries.

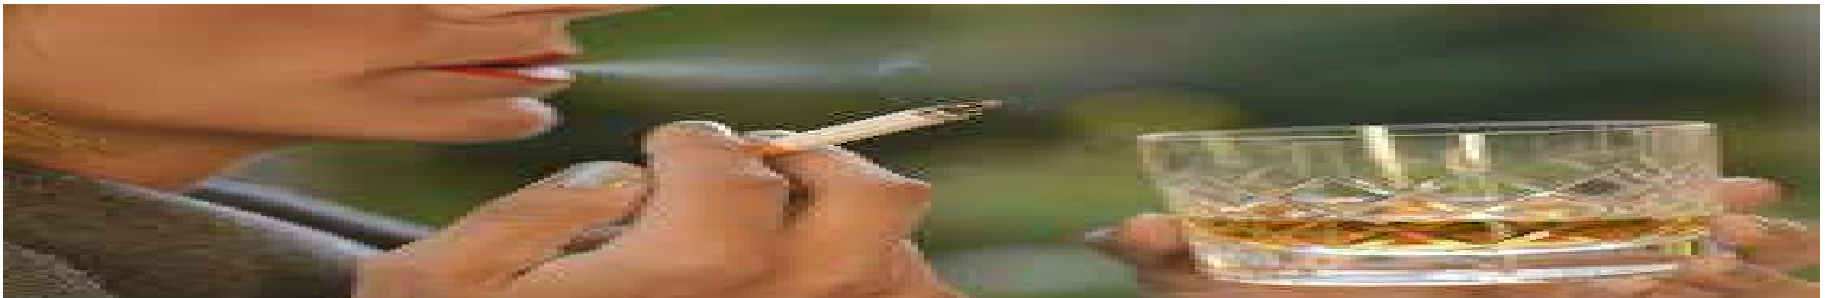

Factors that make people live longer.

- Healthy diet mixed with fruits and vegetables.
- Mild exercise.
- Breathe fresh, clean air.
 - The air quality in a big city is more polluted, and it would be very hard to live up to 100 years while breathing unhealthy, polluted air.
- Minimize stress level.
- Live near nature or in smaller cities where the air is cleaner.
 - The majority of centenarians live in small cities or towns and breathe relatively fresh air.

Factors prevent living longer.

- Smoking
 - A quick search on Wikipedia shows that as of 2007, smoking in Cuba accounted for 45% of the population, and in the Dominican Republic, as of 2019 stands at 11%.
- High consumption of alcohol
- Pollution
- Deficit of necessary nutrients in some locations
 - It was discovered that people in the Chukotka Region, Russian Federation, lack necessary nutrients.
- Stress

Discovered Factors

- There are only five locations in the world called blue zones where the population of long-lived people is the highest.
 - All five locations are located near the sea or ocean. These are Loma Linda, USA; Nicoya, Costa Rica; Sardinia, Italy; Icaria, Greece; and Okinawa, Japan;
- Many regions worldwide lack all necessary factors that prolong human life.
- Life longevity can only be achieved by combining all good and healthy factors.
- Healthy and bad habits mixed together cannot prolong life.

Why live long?

- You can accomplish more in life.
- You can be a good example to others and help to improve society.
- Living long improves your family's lives by being together.

How to prolong longevity?

- Move to a better location where pollution is low and, possibly, near the ocean, sea, or mountains.
- Quit Smoking!
- Exercise more.
- Eat healthy food.

Don't give up!
